

Cynthia McCabe

Senior Vice President, Chief Communications Officer
Exelon Corporation

Profile

McCabe oversees all communications and marketing functions for one of the nation's largest energy transmission and delivery companies, including external and employee communications, reputation initiatives, branding, advertising and social media across Exelon and its six local energy companies: Atlantic City Electric (Southern New Jersey), BGE (Baltimore), ComEd (Northern Illinois), Delmarva Power (Delaware and Maryland), PECO (Philadelphia) and Pepco (Maryland and the District of Columbia). She is a member of Exelon's Executive Committee.

Professional History

Since joining the company in 2017, McCabe has held several roles at Exelon, most recently vice president, Executive Operations, and chief of staff to Exelon President and Chief Executive Officer Calvin Butler. She also held the position of director of Communications for Pepco Holdings, as well as director of Content and Creative Communications for Exelon, and director of Communications for Exelon Utilities. She was named to her current role in November 2024.

Before joining Exelon, McCabe worked in Communications roles at the American Federation of State, County and Municipal Employees (AFSCME), the nation's largest public sector workers' union, and the National Education Association. She began her career as a reporter at North Carolina and Florida newspaper outlets.

Civic Involvement

McCabe is a member of the board of directors and serves as head of the Marketing Committee for the Reginald F. Lewis Museum of African American History and Culture in Baltimore, and has served as a member of the board of directors of the Friends of the National Zoo (FONZ) in Washington, D.C.

Education

McCabe holds a bachelor's degree in English from Clemson University.